Huge crowds, brisk bidding and exceptionally high prices featured two stock sales held Monday in Pickaway county.

Twenty cows, registered Ayrshires, averaged over $220 each in the Corkwell-Stalter sale held Tuesday and a half miles southeast of Mt. Sterling. The top price for cows was $300. Some went to a buyer in Connecticut. Yearling heifer calves ranged from $75 to $110. Sows with pigs ranged up to $72. The top price for horses was $200. A matched team of four-year old mares, sold at the Robert Musser farm, Washington township, brought $440. Other prices for horses were high. Twelve horses were sold.

Frank Bowling of Cattlettsburg, Ky., owner of a farm in Jackson township, purchased the high-priced mares.

One grade Guernsey cow brought the top in the cattle sale, $115. Mr. Musser reported prices on all stock were high and he estimated his sale of horses, about 70 head of cattle and between 40 and 50 hogs would total $5,000.

Mr. Musser disposed of grade stock. He expects to devote his time to raising purebred Guernsey cattle.

CHIEFS OF AUTO INDUSTRY FAVOR
USED CAR SALES

DETROIT, March 1—(UP)—The "big three" of the automotive industry joined today in support of a nation-wide used car sales campaign.

Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor Company, William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors, and K. T. Keller, president of Chrysler Corporation, placed their approval on the drive which opens March 5. It will be the industry's most important effort to break the used car jam which has clogged sales of new automobiles.

Ford's support of the campaign marked the first time in history that the Ford company has joined with other manufacturers in a concerted undertaking.

"It is generally admitted that the automobile industry was the bellwether in the 1933 to 1937 recovery," Ford said. "We are confident that this new united effort to start things moving again will achieve its purpose."

Knudsen and Keller urged owners of old cars to take advantage of the current record low prices.

"Board Bill Baby" in Court

HERE is Paul McCallister, "board bill baby" held by neighbors for weeks because his father, Fred McCallister, of Newville, Pa., was unable to pay $16 demanded for his care. The husky 9-months-old youngster played with the judge's gavel while the latter returned him to his parents. He had been left with neighbors when his mother went to a hospital for an operation.

Piece of Fender, Traces Of Paint Solve Accident

A broken piece of fender and some traces of paint resulted in Ernest Dagon, 24, of S. Scioto street, being fined $50 and costs in B. T. Hedges' justice of peace court, Tuesday, on a charge of failure to stop after an accident on Route 23, Sunday night. Dagon made arrangements to pay his account.

Dagon's car collided with the auto of Dr. J. L. Spindler, of Ashville, two miles north of Circleville at 10 p. m. Sunday. Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell, who investigated the case, said Miss Helen Spindler was driving. After the accident a piece of fender was found. Deputy Fissell learned the piece of fender was from a 1931 Ford roadster. He traced the broken fender to the Dagon car and found traces of gunmetal paint scraped from Dr. Spindler's car. Dagon admitted the charge.

PROSECUTOR ILL, WALISA'S TRIAL DATE POSTPONED

Trial of Roy Walisa, E. Corwin street, on a charge of receiving and concealing two hogs, alleged to have been stolen from D. C. Rader, Pickaway township farmer, will be postponed from Thursday until next Monday, attorneys said at noon Tuesday.

Postponement of the trial was arranged due to the illness of Prosecutor George E. Gerhardt. Mr. Gerhardt is ill at his home with a severe cold.

E. L. Crist, who will assist the prosecutor in the case, said he would ask Judge Phil A. Henderson, of Logan, to approve the postponement. Judge Henderson was assigned to hear the case by Chief Justice Carl V. Weygant after Walisa's counsel asked a foreign judge, Judge J. W. Adkins stepped aside and asked assignment of another. T. A. Renick and C. A. Leist, counsel for Walisa, agreed to the postponement.

Those called for jury duty are Helen Teegardin and Nelle Oesterle, Harrison township; Harry Reiterman, William Schleich, James M. Hatfield, John Bailey, Frank Recob and Clark Beauman, Monroe township; Ralph Head and Austin Wilson, Pickaway township; H. E. Valentine, Clarence Heffner, Florence Fetherolf and Charles Morris, Saltcreek township; Bernice Hulise and Daisy Brown, Deercreek township; Fred Wefler, Harry Denman, George Ruhl and Myrl Heiskell, Circleville, and Lydia Liston, Circleville township.

Way Cleared For Abductors; News Withheld

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., March 1.—(UP)—Murray Levine, prosperous attorney, attempted to negotiate today with the kidnapers of his 12-year-old son, Peter, who disappeared last Thursday and was being held for ransom, reportedly $60,000.

The kidnaping was announced officially by Philip S. Tilden, director of public safety of New Rochelle, last night on the eve of the sixth anniversary of the kidnaping of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., on March 1, 1932.

Tilden told reporters at a press conference today that there was "nothing new" in the case.

Peter, a blue-eyed junior high school student, was last seen leaving school, half a mile from his father's handsome wood and stucco home in this suburb of New York City, at 315 p. m. (EST) Thursday. After a series of denials that he was even missing, police admitted that he had been kidnaped and that G-men had been notified.

Appeal Broadcast

Levine, described by friends as well-to-do but not wealthy, opened an avenue of safety to the kidnapers, assuring them that federal and local authorities had promised to permit him to negotiate without interference. The following appeal on his behalf was broadcast over the greater New York metropolitan area:

"My son, Peter, 12 years old, has been missing since Thursday afternoon. I have made every effort to keep this from the public because of my desire to do everything I possibly can to meet (Continued on Page Eight)

COMMITTEE FOR FARM PROGRAM TO OBTAIN DATA

The Pickaway County Agricultural Conservation committee, Paul Mattheas, county compliance agent, and F. K. Blair, extension agent, will go to Urbana next Monday to a district meeting for presentation of the 1938 farm program.

Members of the county committee are Wilbur Brinker, Walnut township; John Boggs, Pickaway township, and G. H. Armstrong, Saltcreek township.

Community meetings will be called by the county committee after it learns the farm program setup for this year.

PATROLMAN, ON VISIT TO PEN, FINDS BARBER MAN HE SHOT AND CAPTURED

DENVER, March 1—(UP)—Patrolman W. J. Ryan, visiting the state penitentiary on business, needed a shave. He decided to go to the prison barber shop.

He relaxed and the convict barber sloshed cooling lather on his face. Ryan looked up, casually, started to chat with good Irish humor, and gulped. What he saw made him forget all about needing a shave. The barber was "Slim" Johnson, captured and wounded by Ryan in a gun battle several years ago, climaxing Johnson's $10,000 robbery of a Denver store.

Ryan needed more than tonorial attention at the moment, he thought. He shouted for help and guards came running.

Johnson, slowly stropping his razor, seemed greatly amused. "It was my closest shave," said Ryan.

Navy Committee to Vote For Huge Expansion Bill

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(UP)—After more than a month of public hearings, the house naval affairs committee meets privately today to report out President Roosevelt's billion dollar naval expansion bill.

Chairman Carl Vinson, D. Ga., anticipated quick approval despite the demand of Rep. Ralph E. Church, R., Ill., that the navy produce two secret reports for committee scrutiny.

One report Church wanted is on a fleet maneuver off San Francisco last year. Church claims that battleships were theoretically "wiped out" by air bombers. The other is on Naval Captain Royal C. Ingersoll's conversations in January in London with British naval officials.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison flatly refused to produce secret reports when questioned Saturday by Church. He said that in his opinion the reports should remain secret.

The authorization bill, introduced by Vinson, would give the United States one of the largest navies in history, but not quite as large as the one contemplated by Great Britain. It calls for 46 or 47 additional fighting ships—depending on the tonnage allowed each vessel—22 auxiliaries, and 950 airplanes to bring the navy's air strength to 3,000 planes.

NEW YORK, March 1—(UP)—Prices rallied in light trading on the stock exchange today after an irregularly lower opening. Steels led the recovery and other metals were firm. Chemicals resumed their rise under the lead of union carbide which rose 2 points to 80. Rails steadied around the previous close. Oils, utilities, and motors had small advances. At noon U. S. Gen. Pershing Gaining In Battle Against Ailing Heart

TUCSON, Ariz., March 1—(UP)—Gen. John J. Pershing's uphill fight against an ailing heart and kidney disease which threatened death 48 hours ago, continued today and his physicians guardedly predicted his recovery.

The 77-year-old commander of the American Expeditionary forces spent a "very good night and slept for six and a half hours," Dr. Roland Davidson, his physician, reported at 9:30 a. m. today.

"He seems much better this morning, and is conscious," Dr. Davidson's bulletin said.

"While all danger is not yet passed and if the improvement of the last 24 hours continues and there is no relapse, recovery is quite probable."

When Dr. Davidson, appearing more cheerful than at any time since Pershing was taken to the desert sanatorium in an ambulance a week ago, finished reading his bulletin, he said:

"In other words, that is a doctor's way of saying he is well satisfied with his patient."

SHERIFF WHIPS MAN CONVICTED AS WIFE BEATER

BALTIMORE, March 1 (UP)—Sheriff Joseph C. Deegan tied Clyde Miller, convicted wife-beater, to a black whipping post in Baltimore city jail today and lashed his back into a mass of red welts.

Miller, a thin, tense figure when he was bound to the post, sagged with every thudding blow of the cat o' nine tails and great sobbing moans burst from his lips during the last dozen of 20 blows ordered by Judge J. A. Saylor.

Mrs. Miller, who had sworn that she would witness the flogging and like it, was refused admittance to the jail.

The flogging of the Baltimore prisoner was the first time that the old whipping post — part of which dates back to colonial days — had been used in seven years.

Miller was convicted of beating his wife after he himself had been mauled in a tavern rumpus Thursday night.

RESOLUTION BACKS SENATE'S INQUIRY

Packed Galleries and Assembly Hear Davey Assail Foes in Upper House; Ouster of Four Officials Demanded by Metcalf

MARCH 28 ADJOURNMENT SUGGESTED

Charges of Lee Bradley Termed Falsehoods; Hour-Long Address Flays "Inquisition"

COLUMBUS, March 1—(UP)—A resolution asking postponement of adjournment of the Ohio legislature, technically set for Feb. 28, until March 28, was introduced in the house today by Rep. Vanness, Republican, of Champaign county.

The proposed resolution, extending the special legislative session, would permit the state senate graft investigation to be continued. Unless the legislature rescinds its previous adjournment the senate committee's work ended as of Feb. 28.

Whether the house will consider the Vanness resolution or wait until a similar resolution, passed by the senate yesterday, is ready, was undetermined immediately.

The senate resolution, which passed without a vote to spare after nine roll calls, did not set a definite date for adjournment. It would continue the session indefinitely.

COLUMBUS, March 1—(UP)—House Leaders, having temporarily staved off a decision, promised a real test today on whether the house of representatives will adopt the course voted by the senate and permit the senate committee's graft investigation to continue indefinitely.

The house postponed consideration of the senate joint resolution to rescind the resolution for sine die adjournment and thus permit continuance of the investigation after a tumultuous series of events that brought:

An impassioned hour-long defense by Governor Davey in a speech before the house of representatives and packed galleries in which he protested the committee's "inquisition" and repeated declarations of his own and his administration's honesty.

A senate 19 to 3 vote, a bare majority, to annul the previous adjournment decision. The majority vote only was required after unanimous suspension of the rules.

A partial report by the investigating committee denouncing the administration of the highway and liquor departments, the state purchasing office and without naming him, attacking Governor Davey, as ultimately responsible.

A demand by Sen. Verner E. Metcalf, R., Washington, for resignations of Liquor Director J. W. Miller, Bucyrus; Highway Director John J. Jaster, Jr., Cleveland; State Purchasing Agent Glenn Horn, Lakeville; and Al Humphrey, Cincinnati, chief liquor enforcement officer.

Italians Say Garbo Bride Of Leopold

NAPLES, March 1—(UP)—Reports that Leopold Stokowski, famous symphony orchestra conductor, and Greta Garbo, motion picture star, have been married were revived today by the disclosure that Stokowski has refuted the villa Cimbrone, near Naples.

City hall officials at Ravello, where the villa is situated, said that the new inhabitants of the villa are Stokowski and one Margaret Louise Gustafson, who bears a striking resemblance to Greta Garbo. (Miss Garbo's real name is Louise Gustafson.)

Officials said the villa was rented for one month for $260. It belongs to a Britisher named Grimthorpe.

This morning the couple motored to Sorrento, from where they took a motor boat to the Isle of Capri.

ROME, March 1—(UP)—The Amalfi correspondent of the newspaper Popolo Di Roma said today that Greta Garbo and Leopold Stokowski are vacationing at Ravello, near Amalfi, 23 miles southeast of Naples.

Graft, Forgery, Corruption Hit by Senators

COLUMBUS, March 1 — (UP)—Highlights of the preliminary report of the senate graft investigating committee:

In the department of liquor control, it is the judgment of this committee, that the entire situation is so shot through with forgery, corruption, graft, false reports, fake statistics, pretended "buys" and mal-administration, as to be hopeless of cure. The only possible remedy — as it appears to this committee — is to wipe the slate clean and rebuild anew.

Indeed, it is our studied opinion, it would be better to extinguish the enforcement division and have no enforcement supervision whatsoever, than to permit a continuance of the present pretended enforcement, wherein the very badge of the authority of the state

is so largely used against the real welfare of Ohio.

In its essence, the virtual purpose of much of the liquor department, is a debate and political one. As a result, there appears to be a general feeling that if political service is rendered to the administration, that is all that is really required and, in the wake thereof, padded expense accounts, falsified reports, forged bills, pretended statistics and even punishment of those politically opposed are expected to be winked at, condoned and permitted.

Liquor inspectors relentlessly aim to "get something" on each other.

In the highway department, there is presented the sad spectacle of almost gleeful waste of taxpayers' money.

The head of the liquor department, has been so carefully and so thoroughly hedged about as to be but a figurehead — a mere frontpiece for evil practices to hide behind.

X X X It cannot be otherwise than deemed by this committee that a shockingly large part of each taxpayer's dollar goes elsewhere than into the roads themselves.

Unfortunately, the federal government has permitted great sums of federal money to be joined with state funds, in being wasted, squandered and needlessly spent.

The purchasing department of

Ohio is run and operated so plainly in defiance of the law, as to cause this committee to be bewildered.

With coal purchased without any bids; with the fortunate awarders being hand-selected by the commissioner of purchases without any competition, and with the price being fixed by such commissioner under such non-competitive and non-bidding method, it is not to be wondered at that the state's money has been doled out to political favorites, at just twice what should have been paid by the taxpayers.

Neither this committee nor its counsel make any pretense of perfection or infallibility.

No member of the committee

nor its counsel has or will receive any pay.

Every conceivable obstacle has been thrown in the path of this investigation, and — with infinite care — they have seen to it, that funds have not been made available to this committee.

It is pitiful to witness the open-handed benefactions that have been bestowed on political favorites and the lavish mode of living now being enjoyed by the political "brokers" and by the "high boys" who are "next of kin" to this administration.

Even the aged have had to pay, by being denied their pensions, in order that the "chosen" few might live in ease and comfort.

Frank Bowling of Cattlettsburg, Ky., owner of a farm in Jackson township, purchased the high-priced mares.

One grade Guernsey cow brought the top in the cattle sale, $115. Mr. Musser reported prices on all stock were high and he estimated his sale of horses, about 70 head of cattle and between 40 and 50 hogs would total $5,000.

Mr. Musser disposed of grade stock. He expects to devote his time to raising purebred Guernsey cattle.

SHERIFF WHIPS MAN CONVICTED AS WIFE BEATER

BALTIMORE, March 1 (UP)—Sheriff Joseph C. Deegan tied Clyde Miller, convicted wife-beater, to a black whipping post in Baltimore city jail today and lashed his back into a mass of red welts.

Miller, a thin, tense figure when he was bound to the post, sagged with every thudding blow of the cat o' nine tails and great sobbing moans burst from his lips during the last dozen of 20 blows ordered by Judge J. A. Saylor.

Mrs. Miller, who had sworn that she would witness the flogging and like it, was refused admittance to the jail.

The flogging of the Baltimore prisoner was the first time that the old whipping post — part of which dates back to colonial days — had been used in seven years.

Miller was convicted of beating his wife after he himself had been mauled in a tavern rumpus Thursday night.

RESOLUTION BACKS SENATE'S INQUIRY

Packed Galleries and Assembly Hear Davey Assail Foes in Upper House; Ouster of Four Officials Demanded by Metcalf

Charges of Lee Bradley Termed Falsehoods; Hour-Long Address Flays "Inquisition"

COLUMBUS, March 1—(UP)—A resolution asking postponement of adjournment of the Ohio legislature, technically set for Feb. 28, until March 28, was introduced in the house today by Rep. Vanness, Republican, of Champaign county.

The proposed resolution, extending the special legislative session, would permit the state senate graft investigation to be continued. Unless the legislature rescinds its previous adjournment date the senate committee's work ended as of Feb. 28.

Whether the house will consider the Vanness resolution or wait until a similar resolution, passed by the senate yesterday, is ready, was undetermined immediately.

The senate resolution, which passed without a vote to spare after nine roll calls, did not set a definite date for adjournment. It would continue the session indefinitely.

COLUMBUS, March 1—(UP)—House leaders, having temporarily staved off a decision, promised a real test today on whether the house of representatives will adopt the course voted by the senate and permit the senate committee's graft investigation to continue indefinitely.

The house postponed consideration of the senate joint resolution to rescind the resolution for sine die adjournment and thus permit continuance of the investigation after a tumultuous series of events that brought:

An impassioned hour-long defense by Governor Davey in a speech before the house of representatives and packed galleries in which he protested the committee's "inquisition" and repeated declarations of his own and his administration's honesty.

A senate 19 to 3 vote, a bare majority, to annul the previous adjournment decision. The majority vote only was required after unanimous suspension of the rules.

A partial report by the investigating committee denouncing the administration of the highway and liquor departments, the state purchasing office and without naming him, attacking Governor Davey, as ultimately responsible.

A demand by Sen. Verner E. Metcalf, R., Washington, for resignations of Liquor Director J. W. Miller, Bucyrus; Highway Director John J. Jaster, Jr., Cleveland; State Purchasing Agent, Glenn Horn, Lakeville; and Al Humphrey, Cincinnati, chief liquor enforcement officer.

Officials said the villa was rented for one month for $260. It belongs to a Britisher named Grimthorpe.

This morning the couple motored to Sorrento, from where they took a motor boat to the Isle of Capri.

Davey "Most Careful"

Italians Say Garbo Bride Of Leopold

NAPLES, March 1—(UP)—Reports that Leopold Stokowski, famous symphony orchestra conductor, and Greta Garbo, motion picture star, have been married were revived today by the disclosure that Stokowski has refuted the villa Cimbrone, near Naples.

City hall officials at Ravenna, where the villa is situated, said that the new inhabitants of the villa are Stokowski and one Margaret Louise Gustafson, who bears a striking resemblance to Greta Garbo. (Miss Garbo's real name is Louise Gustafson.)

Graft, Forgery, Corruption Hit by Senators

COLUMBUS, March 1 — (UP)—Highlights of the preliminary report of the senate graft investigating committee:

In the department of liquor control, it is the judgment of this committee, that the entire situation is so shot through with forgery, corruption, graft, false reports, fake statistics, pretended "buys" and mal-administration, as to be hopeless of cure. The only possible remedy — as it appears to this committee — is to wipe the slate clean and rebuild anew.

Indeed, it is our studied opinion, it would be better to extinguish the enforcement division and have no enforcement supervision whatsoever, than to permit a continuance of the present pretended enforcement, wherein the very badge of the authority of the state

is so largely used against the real welfare of Ohio.

In its essence, the virtual purpose of much of the liquor department, is a debate and political one. As a result, there appears to be a general feeling that if political service is rendered to the administration, that is all that is really required and, in the wake thereof, padded expense accounts, falsified reports, forged bills, pretended statistics and even punishment of those politically opposed are expected to be winked at, condoned and permitted.

Liquor inspectors relentlessly aim to "get something" on each other.

In the highway department, there is presented the sad spectacle of almost gleeful waste of taxpayers' money.

The head of this department, as the head of the liquor department, has been so carefully and so thoroughly hedged about as to be but a figurehead — a mere frontpiece for evil practices to hide behind.

X X X It cannot be otherwise than deemed by this committee that a shockingly large part of each taxpayer's dollar goes elsewhere than into the roads themselves.

Unfortunately, the federal government has permitted great sums of federal money to be joined with state funds, in being wasted, squandered and needlessly spent.

The purchasing department of

Ohio is run and operated so plainly in defiance of the law, as to cause this committee to be bewildered.

With coal purchased without any bids; with the fortunate awardees being hand-selected by the commissioner of purchases without any competition, and with the price being fixed by such commissioner under such non-competitive and non-bidding method, it is not to be wondered at that the state's money has been doled out to political favorites, at just twice what should have been paid by the taxpayers.

Neither this committee nor its counsel make any pretense of perfection or infallibility.

No member of the committee

nor its counsel has or will receive any pay.

Every conceivable obstacle has been thrown in the path of this investigation, and — with infinite care — they have seen to it, that funds have not been made available to this committee.

It is pitiful to witness the open-handed benefactions that have been bestowed on political favorites and the lavish mode of living now being enjoyed by the political "brokers" and by the "high boys" who are "next of kin" to this administration.

Even the aged have had to pay, by being denied their pensions, in order that the "chosen" few might live in ease and comfort.

THREE POWERS DISCUSS MAJOR NAVY BUILDING

U. S., Britain and France To Decide Advisability Of Increasing Ships

GREAT COST FEARED

Any Move Would Mean Race By All Other Nations

LONDON, March 1 — (UP) — American, British and French naval experts started discussion today of the advisability of building super-battleships and super-cruisers as a defense measure because Japan refuses to disclose her navy building program.

The discussions, at the foreign office, were informal. But on their result depended, to a considerable extent, a departure into a new phase of naval construction, the expenditure of enormous sums of money and possibly the start of a new building race.

Under their treaty of 1936 the three powers restricted themselves to battleships of not more than 35,000 tons and cruisers of not more than 8,000 tons. But by an "escalator" clause they may release themselves from these limits for purposes of national security. It was up to the experts to agree whether (1) Japan, as some suspect, is building battleships and cruisers in excess of these limits; (2) whether they should start building such ships themselves. They might even invoke the escalator clause in other classes of ships.

Up to U. S., Britain

A decision, in a problem that might mean expenditure of many hundreds of millions of dollars, really lay with the United States and Britain, because a French government spokesman told The United Press in Paris yesterday that France would agree in advance to whatever decision the other powers made.

It was not necessary to make any decision public. The three powers are bound only as concerns themselves. But Germany and Russia have subscribed to the treaty. Germany by special agreement is entitled to build up roughly one-third of the British strength, so she would be entitled to build one super-ship for each three British builds.

The most dramatic phase of today's negotiations was the possibility of a race in building gigantic battleships, floating fortresses, ranging from 42,000 to 45,000 tons.

But the prospective cost was staggering — from $60,000,000 to $75,000,000 a ship. One new super-ship would cost Britain $20,000,000 more than one of 35,000 tons. Twenty million dollars equals 1/64 of the total amount derived annually from the country's heavy income tax.

Others Would Follow

Britain would probably plan five super-ships if any. The United States would equal her. Japan would join in perforce, whether or not she ever considered building such ships. Germany would follow Britain. France would build to match Germany, Italy to match France. Russia anxiously increasing her unknown strength, would be expected to build against Germany and Japan alike if able.

Girl Kisses Her Mother Farewell, Goes to Death

WACO, Tex., Mar. 1—(UP)—Ethel Davis kissed her mother on the cheek, stopped to confide in her sister-in-law, then walked out the back door to meet her lover, knowing that he was waiting to kill her.

She stepped into his automobile without a word. He sat at the steering wheel, morosely fixed. They rode northward on the Dallas highway furiously for a few minutes. Then they turned and started back toward town. He had picked the place for their deaths.

He jammed the car's accelerator to the floor. Another motorist said they passed him going 90 miles an hour. It was evident that their car had struck deliberately and headlong into the cement abutment of a railroad underpass.

Twenty minutes after Miss Davis left her home, her body and that of Richard Cory, 23, were taken from the wreckage. They died instantly.

She was 20, and had been keeping company with Cory for two years, until there was a lover's quarrel and she went away to visit her sister, Miss Allen Steward, in Temple, Tex.

Yesterday Miss Davis returned to her mother's home. She knew that Cory was enraged by her absence, the climax to their quarrel. But she told her mother nothing when she kissed her goodbye. Cory had come to the back door and sounded the horn of his automobile.

On her way out, the girl rapped on the door of her sister-in-law's room.

Gas REFRIGERATOR

Mrs. Pauline Malikowski, 2930 Lagrange Street, Toledo, Ohio, says—
"I have owned an Electrolux gas refrigerator for the past year and find it inexpensive to operate. But most of all, I appreciate its silent operation, and even temperature. I am very pleased with my Electrolux because I have used another type of automatic refrigerator."

Mrs. Thomas Montgomery, 950 S. 22nd Street, Columbus, Ohio, says—
"We purchased a Servel Electrolux gas refrigerator after using other types of refrigerators for many years. Great satisfaction to know food is properly preserved at all times. Silence and low operating cost make it a pleasure to own and recommend."

FIVE MEN HURT, SEVERAL JAILED IN STRIKE FIGHT

Sterling, Ill., Barbed Wire Plant Scene of 30-Minute Pitched Battle

TEAR GAS BOMBS USED

Workman's Leg, Struck By Gas Bomb, Amputated

STERLING, Ill., March 1—(UP)—Five men were injured, one seriously, early today when police and deputy sheriffs, using tear gas bombs, battled for 30 minutes with approximately 200 striking employees of the Northwestern Barbed Wire and Rodmill company.

The strikers hurled rocks and clubs. They were dispersed with half a dozen tear gas bombs fired by deputies.

Two union organizers and three strikers were arrested, charged with inciting to riot.

The rioting started shortly after midnight with expiration of a contract under which members of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, Committee for Industrial Organization affiliate, had worked for a year.

The strikers, employed on the night shift, were ordered to walk out by union officials who said the company refused to renew the contract.

The men massed in front of the plant. When ordered to disperse by police, fighting broke out. The officers summoned Sheriff A. E. Hamilton who arrived with 63 deputies.

Rocks and other missiles were thrown. Windows in the plant were broken. Several stones struck a Northwestern railroad passenger train, passing near the plant.

Dale Vroman, 24, a striker, was struck in the leg by a tear gas bomb. He was removed to a hospital and the leg amputated. Another striker, two deputies and Sheriff Hamilton were injured slightly.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Something new in the production of motion picture comedies, "Satire through over-elaborate settings," is used for the first time in "Love on Toast," a comedy on the slightly daff side with Stella Ardler and John Payne, opening tomorrow on a double bill with "Non Stop New York," at the Cliftona Theatre.

"Satire through over-elaborate settings," according to its chief proponent, Wiard B. Ihnen, one of the screen's best known art directors, is a process wherein a sense of the ludicrous, which puts the audience into a frame of mind to expect high comedy, is implanted by exaggerated backdrops, hangings, decorations and other settings.

This novel departure has aroused unusual interest and it is predicted by executives that a new field for the creative artists of filmdom will be opened by it.

AT THE GRAND

"Varsity Show," Warner Bros. film musical extraordinary at the Grand Theatre, starring the ever-popular Dick Powell and introducing in grand manner to motion picture audiences, Fred Waring and his nationally famous orchestra, the Pennsylvanians, "Varsity Show" marks a new high in musical and comedy entertainment.

Included in the stellar cast besides Dick Powell and Fred Waring are such leading figures as Ted Healy, Lee Dixon, Picarella Lane, Rosemary Lane, Buck and Bubbles, Walter Catlett, Johnny Davis and Roy Atwell. Busby Berkeley, known for his imaginative and lavish production numbers in past Warner Bros. musicals, outdoes himself in "Varsity Show" with a smashing finale that climaxes more than an hour of supreme fun and amusement.

DOG PROFICIENT JUGGLER, USING 12-FOOT BOARD

ABERDEEN, Wash. (UP)—Ross Bates wouldn't be surprised at anything that Copper might bring home.

Copper is a Belgian shepherd, smaller than the type known as police dogs.

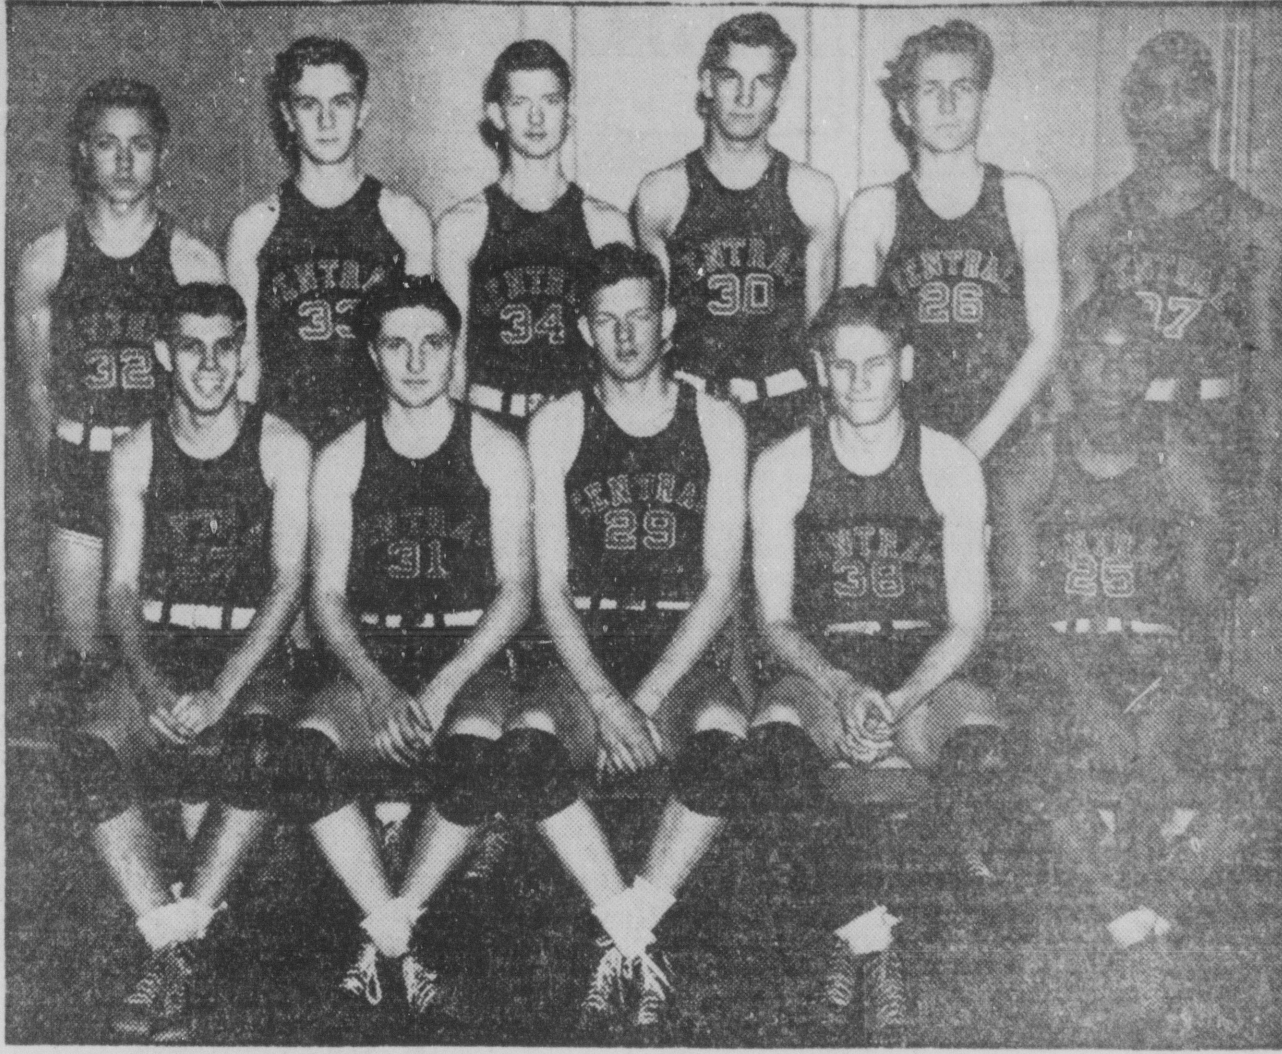

The dog already has carried home shipplap, two-by-fours, and other pieces of lumber.

He uses them in a self-taught juggling and balancing act with which he amuses himself for hours at a time.

At present he is using a piece of shipplap 12 feet long, but will do his trick with any stick of this or greater length.

Copper lifts one end of the board in his mouth and slides his teeth along it until it balances. Then he twists his body and gives the board a little toss, maneuvering so the lumber drops on his shoulders. He shifts his position until the board balances on his shoulders and walks as far as he can without losing the load. When the board falls off, he starts all over again.

P.-T.A. Has Founders' Day Event, Arranges Banquet

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Phone Ashville 79

The P.-T. A. celebrated Founders' Day with an extra good program Monday evening. The meeting opened with devotionals by Rev. H. D. Fudge, followed by the regular business session.

Mrs. Shirley Cooper was appointed Safety chairman for this locality and the association voted to hold the annual banquet for the basketball teams. This will not be in the hands of the Ways and Means Committee. It was also proposed, but not voted, to pay the transportation costs of visual education materials whenever necessary in order that the school may make use of the free material available at the state department of education.

Motion pictures of the Ohio river flood of last year were shown as well as a reel on the Island of Ceylon and its inhabitants and one on the Glacier National park. There were also still pictures in color of wild animals of the world. About 125 persons enjoyed these pictures and Grade V again won the attendance prize for the month.

Personal Items

Doctor J. Rocky and wife made a start for the South Wednesday, the objective point being Miami. They expect to be gone for a few weeks. E. W. Newton, our creamery operator, was in Ashville Monday on an observation trip. He is a resident of Columbus and as yet not engaged in business.

Cecil Scott, superintendent of waterworks, told us that he had made a water installation at the home of Howard Whitehead on North East street. More are to be connected in the near future. A house painter told us that prospects for work in his line were good and as soon as the weather permitted, he would be at work. John Cloud and his son Ralph who assists him when needed, said that there would be at least three new dwellings built in and about Lithopolis, work to begin on them soon as the weather permit. Says they will be plenty busy if prospects count for anything. S. C. Allison, past postmaster, and school janitor for several years is confined to his bed by sickness. Prince Moore is substituting for him at the school building.

Youths Expected Home

Royce and Ralph McNeal, sons of Mrs. Tillie McNeal, who have been in a CCC camp at Brigham, Utah, for the last several months, are expected home soon. The crimp the weather man put into the atmosphere lessened the attendance at Headquarters, and other than George Finch, the Commercial Point undertaker who came over to see if he could be of service in planting some of the ball fans, things were quiet. Dr. Gardner diagnoses the loss as a plain case of telepathy. The roaring mass of people told the boys they couldn't win and they became mesmerized and followed orders. "True or Not" this is a good alibi. Frank Foust, 78 years of age and a long time resident of Ashville, is in a Columbus hospital recovering from an appendicitis operation. The appendix had become ruptured before the operation. Clyde Michael, while assisting in starting a stallion auto belonging to Ira Fisher, painfully injured his leg. No bones were broken. Cliff Decker, up along Walnut creek in Madison, although carved and sewed up a few times is slowly getting better in spite of all this.

SEADLUND ASKS ELECTRIC CHAIR FOR HIS PENALTY

CHICAGO, March 1—(UP)—John Henry Seadlund, confessed kidnap-slayer of Charles S. Ross, retired greeting card manufacturer, urged his lawyers today to cease efforts to delay his trial because, he said, he prefers a quick death in the electric chair.

He pleaded guilty to the kidnaping before Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday. A jury trial was set for March 14, after U. S. District Attorney Michael L. Igoe said he would demand the death penalty.

Floyd E. Thompson, court-appointed attorney for the defendant, said Seadlund told him he preferred "the chair and have it over with" rather than a long wait in jail.

Igoe asked the jury trial because the so-called Lindbergh law, under which Seadlund is being prosecuted, requires a jury's recommendation for the death penalty when a guilty plea is made to a capital crime.

Ross was kidnaped Sept. 25 by Seadlund and James Atwood Gray, a young Kentuckian. Two days after the victim's wife, May, paid a $50,000 ransom, Seadlund killed both Ross and Gray in a dugout near Spooner, Wis.

R. E. Lightner, second quarter; Mrs. D. M. Famulener, third and Mrs. H. E. Yapple fourth. Mrs. A. M. Forrester had charge of the devotionals. The Guild will hold a market in the Tea room on March 26th a. m. During the program remarks were made by Rev. Forrester; two piano duets by Mrs. David Crouse and Jimmy Mowery. A reading on "Pen Portraits of American Women from Colonial Days to the Civil War" was read by Mrs. Vernon Barrett; two musical numbers by Mrs. Lloyd Reitmanner accompanied by Mrs. Mildred Crouse.

Mrs. Carson Dresbach, Mrs. Amos Leist, Mrs. Will Wood and Mrs. David Crouse served refreshments of date pudding with whipped cream and coffee to the 20 members and four visitors that were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Haynes will be the guests Sunday of his mother, Mrs. Emma Haynes, at Frankfort.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hartranft, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Buchwalter of Columbus, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Buchwalter.

Mrs. Nora Seitz of Amanda, is the guest this week of her sister, Mrs. Della Garrett.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Wilkins, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wright and children and Mrs. Lillie Trimmer of near Hayesville, were Friday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wright.

Capone's Wife, Brother Hide in San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, March 1—(UP)—The wife and brother of Al Capone were believed to be in hiding here today, awaiting another chance to slip away from newspaper reporters and visit the imprisoned former Chicago gang boss at Alcatraz island.

Ben (Cowboy) Rather, the cab driver who had them for fares yesterday, said they had paid him well for his wild ride, through red traffic lights, over sidewalks and down one-way streets the wrong way, to avoid a carload of newspapermen, but he didn't care to have them in his cab again.

The wife, Mrs. Mamie Capone, and the brother, Ralph Capone, made their first visit to Alcatraz yesterday since the former gangster suffered a mental breakdown last month. They came from Florida for the visit. Wives are permitted to visit Alcatraz prisoners not more than once in a month, and Mrs. Capone usually makes her trips here at the end of the month so that she may make two trips to the island in successive days but different months. For that reason it was expected that she might return today.

Visit Reported

Reporters, hearing of her visit, were waiting for the gangster's wife when she came down the gangplank from a cutter at the government docks yesterday after a trip to the federal prison in the bay. She trembled when a photographer's flashbulb lighted then darted toward a taxi with her brother-in-law.

The cab was Rather's, who happened to be first in line.

"Ralph Capone said: 'Drive to Powell and Market streets,'" the caddy related.

"He told me he would pay me well if I ditched the reporters' car. I nearly wrecked the cab twice, because I knew who I was carrying. I drove down one way streets and over sidewalks because I thought maybe I'd better. I didn't want to get mixed up in any trouble and I was afraid if the reporters caught us there might have been trouble. When we got to the Stockton street tunnel Mrs. Capone said 'Not the hotel. This is far enough.' They got out and started down the street toward the hotel district the last I saw of them. Capone told me I could handle a car. But I don't like carrying people in cases. I'm a careful driver and I don't want any trouble."

Mrs. Capone, a tall blonde, usually stays at small, obscure hotels on her trips here.

For that reason it was expected that she might return today.

Visit Reported

Reporters, hearing of her visit, were waiting for the gangster's wife when she came down the gangplank from a cutter at the government docks yesterday after a trip to the federal prison in the bay. She trembled when a photographer's flashbulb lighted then darted toward a taxi with her brother-in-law.

The cab was Rather's, who happened to be first in line.

"Ralph Capone said: 'Drive to Powell and Market streets,'" the cabbie related.

"He told me he would pay me well if I ditched the reporters' car. I nearly wrecked the cab twice, because I knew who I was carrying. I drove down one way streets and over sidewalks because I thought maybe I'd better. I didn't want to get mixed up in any trouble and I was afraid if the reporters caught us there might have been trouble. When we got to the Stockton street tunnel Mrs. Capone said 'Not the hotel. This is far enough.' They got out and started down the street toward the hotel district the last I saw of them. Capone told me I could handle a car. But I don't like carrying people in cases. I'm a careful driver and I don't want any trouble."

Mrs. Capone, a tall blonde, usually stays at small, obscure hotels on her trips here.

MASTER-HIGHWAYS

SENATOR ROBERT J. BULKLEY'S
super-highway plan, which has now reached the propaganda stage, is so stupendous that, on first presentation, it makes an ordinary mind dizzy. There is to be a vast gridiron of thoroughfares covering the country, three main highways running east and west and perhaps twice that many north and south, all far more modern than anything now existing, and calculated to cost perhaps $8,000,000,000.

The cost is not supposed to come out of the federal treasury. The government would merely finance the project. It would be paid for by tolls over a long term of years, at the rate of one-fourth cent a mile by cars using it. In a current statement Senator Bulkley made these claims:

"It will afford prompt, continuing and effective aid to recovery. The money spent will have many turn-overs. It will take W. P. A. workers off the government pay roll, reducing appropriations for work relief.

"The super-highway system will permanently increase the automobile business and related lines. Motorists will save time and money for gas consumption. Wear and tear of cars and tires will be reduced and the number of accidents will be lessened. The tolls imposed will not be a tax on the motorist, since he will get full value for all he pays.

"Property values along highways will be enhanced. Concessions will create new business employment. Financing of this system will be on a self-liquidating basis,
to be paid out of toll charges and sales of concessions and excess property. Thus it will be a charge on the general taxpayer."

If the nation could really lift itself to prosperity by such bootstraps, it would certainly be worth considering. But it takes time to get used to the idea and its vast, varied implications. All that can properly be asked now is a willingness to study the project.

SECRECY

THERE is an old rhyme about a famous Egyptian Pharaoh which runs as follows:

"Some say the dreadful secret hid
Beneath the Cheops pyramid
Is this—that the contractor did
Cheops out of several millions."

Lately there has been a great delving
for mysterious naval secrets at Washington. Has the administration a secret pact with Great Britain for mutual defensive use of navies? What are the secret reasons for a big naval construction campaign just now? Are battleships worth their cost, or is it true that reports proving their uselessness in modern warfare have been concealed by the navy? And so on.

The mystery continues. The one thing we can be reasonably sure of is that, if the big navy people get what they want,
it will cost Uncle Sam several billions.

Heard a youth, who has not been around enough to know much about anything, complaining about our land and declaring that in his opinion most European countries are far ahead of the United States.

For his enlightenment, and for the benefit of others of similar opinion, here are just a few facts and figures: The United States contains only 6 per cent of the world's area and has about 7 per cent of the world's population. Yet the United States normally consumes 48
per cent of the world's coffee; 53 per cent of its tin; 56 per cent of its rubber; 22 per cent of its sugar; 72 per cent of its silk; 36 per cent of its coal; 42 per cent of its pigiron; 47
per cent of its copper, and 69
per cent of its crude petroleum.

The United States operates 60 per cent of the world's telephone and telegraph facilities;
owns 80 per cent of the motor cars in use, operates 33 per cent of the railroads. We produce 76 per cent of the world's oil, 60 per cent of the wheat and cotton, 50 per cent of the copper and pigiron and 40 per cent of the lead and coal output of the globe.

The purchasing power of the population of the United States is greater than that of 500,000-000 Europeans and is much larger than that of 1,000,000,000 Asiatians. Oh yes, this is a rotten country in which to live.
True, we are having some difficulty now, but with all our resources we will have a most difficult time going broke.
Someday we will pull out of these depressing conditions and continue the advance that has been so rapid that the rest of the world is too far behind to catch up regardless of their
"utopian" governments.

Our form of government suits me right to the ground. I would rather have precedent showing me the things I can do if I have the brains and energy than have a dictator working 24 hours a day thinking up new things to tell me I can not do.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

IRISH MINISTER HONORED

WASHINGTON — Michael MacWhite, Irish Minister to the United States, is sailing for a new post, and with his departure the American people are losing an old friend.

Foreign diplomats, as a rule, live in houses of gilded glamour. They do not get down and grub with the Congressmen, cooks and bottle-washers who ride on the merry-go-round of Washington. They know as little about the country to which they are accredited as the Los Angeles WPA worker does about diplomacy. Both get their ideas from the movies.

In such an atmosphere Michael Mac-
White has stood out as one who knew the United States almost better than the United States knows itself. He knew, for instance, the police chief of every large city in the country, the mayors of many,
and had appeared before Irish-American gatherings in every State north of the Mason-Dixon line.

In Chicago he knew almost as much about local politics as Mayor Kelly. In New York the satchels of Tammany called him by his first name. While in Boston—!!
Well, Boston was a tough spot even for MacWhite—it has too many Irish factions.

In Washington, high officials trusted
the Irish Minister more probably than any other diplomat. He was almost one of the family. One day he was in the President's office when Joseph P. Kennedy, then chairman of the Maritime Commission,
came in to explain a report on the merchant marine which was marked, "Confidential—for the President." So Mac-White started to withdraw.

"That's all right," said Kennedy, motioning for him to stay, "this is 'Confidential' for the President and MacWhite only."

HOOVER'S HAIR DOWN

MacWhite also was on good terms with President Hoover, and is one of the few diplomats who ever witnessed those rare moments when Hoover relaxed. One of these occurred during the annual High Jinks at Bohemian Grove near San Francisco some years ago, where Mac-
White was a guest.

Arriving at the cabin where he was to stay, MacWhite noted several cots around the room and asked his guide:

"Whose is that?"

"Mr. Hoover's."

"Whose bed is that?"

"That's Mr. Wilbur's, the ex-Secretary of the Interior."

"Well, whose bed is that?"

"That's Will Rogers'." (Will was killed
a few weeks later.)

This completed the guest list for that particular cabin. MacWhite hurried off to a cocktail party where the host announced:

"We've been trying to keep this cocktail cool for twenty minutes waiting for
you. We've got your favorite kind—a daquiri."

"Who told you that was my favorite?"
asked MacWhite (who has no favorite).

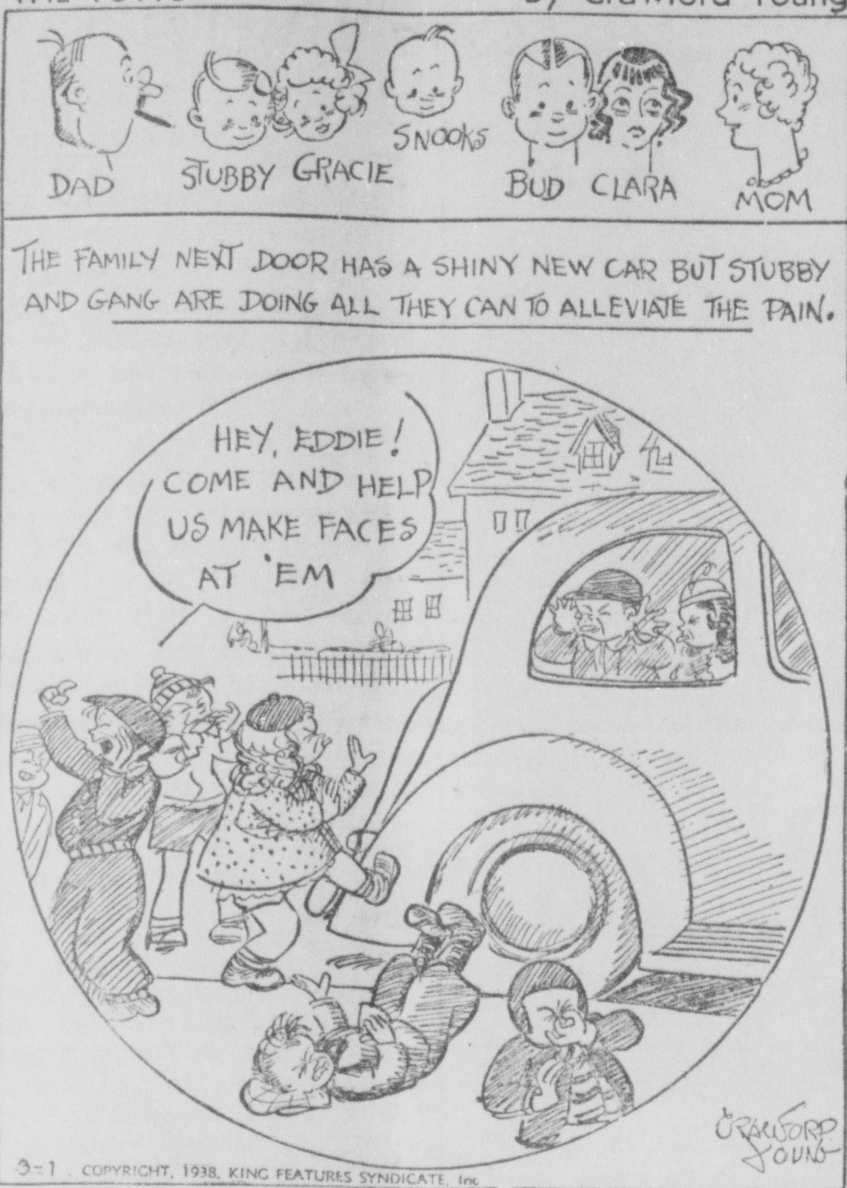

"We got the recipe from Mr. Hoover."

Later Mr. Hoover had a Benedictine.
Although he did not go in for anything stronger, the ex-President kept his bunkmates up until late that night regaling them with stories of his war days in Belgium.

child."

If You've Lump in Breast Visit Physician

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

SEVERAL letters have come in about the treatment of cancer of the breast, of which the following is a typical example: A woman writes to say that she has discovered a small lump in the breast, and wonders whether it could be due to the fact that she had some teeth extracted last week and that there was a gland enlargement from this.

The important thing here is to realize that you must not wait
for advice by correspondence. It may be a simple inflammatory condition or it may be cancerous. But what it is should be determined immediately, and that can be done by any physician or surgeon.

Cancer is a local disease in its early stage, and cancer of the breast can usually be removed completely at this time, but it is serious when a few cells from the local growth wander out into the blood stream and begin to set up a growth of their own at distant places.

A great deal of improvement has been made in the treatment of all of these cases by a combination of surgery and X-ray and radium. The use of X-ray and radium, either before or after operation, or both, has prevented the necessity for the radical operations with removal of large blocks of tissue which were performed before radium and X-ray were known to be anti-cancerous.

Good Results Obtained

When the disease is local and is treated by a combination of surgery and radiation, good results are obtained in a very large series of cases after a five-year period. In fact, the results in cancer of the breast, if intelligent treatment is instituted promptly after the discovery of a lump, are just as good as the results obtained in any chronic disease, and a great deal better than the results obtained in most chronic diseases.

A great many people, like my correspondent, delay because they feel the lump can be explained away in a simple fashion. It is very easy to satisfy an apprehensive mind in this way and to waste
the precious days in which it would be possible to promise a cure absolutely. Others feel that they cannot bear to have the diagnosis of cancer made. But the whole essence of the successful treatment of cancer depends upon prompt action in the early stage.

It is no longer true that the diagnosis of cancer of the breast necessarily carries with it the implication of a fatal outcome, and the important thing is to utilize the methods of treatment which we have available, and which have proved so successful, at the very earliest possible moment.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

A CASE FOR 3 DETECTIVES

By LEO BRUCE
COPYRIGHT BY LEO BRUCE, RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER 40

"NOW STRICKLAND'S plan
did not sound to Fellowes as crazy
as it may sound to you," Lord Simon pointed out. "In the first place, Mrs. Thurston could be relied on to go to bed at 11. In the second place, she was obviously a woman who could be easily scared.
And in the third place, by escaping out of the window, Strickland would give a pretty fair imitation of a bloke from outside. He would have to make use of her silence, of course, till he was well away, and he would have to make certain that she did not follow him across to her window, and see him pop into his own. But neither of those would be very difficult.

"Fellowes, in any case, was not hard to convince, because his own part in the affair wasn't very difficult or incriminating. All he had to do was to have the rope
in when Strickland was safely in his window, and afterwards collect his share of the loot. That was not a hell of a job for a man who had already been to jail for housebreaking.

"So the whole thing was arranged thus. During dinner Fellowes was to get the rope from the gymnasium, hang it out of the window of his own bedroom,
which, as you know, is over Strickland's room, go down into
Mrs. Thurston's room, and by means of a hooked stick or something haul the end of the rope over to her window. He could fix it there by the simple expedient of pulling the end into the room, and hauling the window down on top of it. Even if anyone went into the room after him, and before Mrs. Thurston came to bed, those long curtains would hide it.

"When the rope was fixed, Fellowes was to take out the electric light bulb, so that when Strickland came the room would be in half-darkness. And after that he had nothing to do until 11, when he was to go up to his bedroom and haul in the rope.

"Meanwhile Strickland, so far as Fellowes knew, was to go to bed early, get into Mrs. Thurston's room in his rough disguise,
wait for her to come to bed, clap
a hand over her mouth quickly to prevent her screaming, gag her,
force her to open the safe, pocket
the jewelry, tie Mary Thurston to something out of sight of the window, climb out onto the rope,
let the rope swing him to his own window as it would kindly do in obeying the law of gravity, nip in, conceal the tomfoolery, and be ready to come out of his room
and join the hue and cry.

"Fellowes thought it a splendid idea. He saw only one snag in it.
That was his friend Miles. He knew it was Miles day off, and that he, who would certainly be outside and not inside the house,
would, as an experienced cat-burglar, be at once suspected. But this he could easily avoid by seeing Miles that afternoon, and telling him to see that he had a cast iron alibi in the evening. So Fellowes was quite happy.

"And Strickland's own real, and rather more private plan, was now perfect, too. No paltry disguises for him. A disguise might frighten her into giving a premature scream. He could be waiting in Mrs. Thurston's room in his own charming and natural guise, and when she came up he would neatly slit her throat and swing home in safety. He would then step out of his room with a perfect alibi almost before anyone could reach her door. Afterwards, he would have to explain
it to Fellowes as necessary. And Fellowes would be too deeply involved to peach. Fascinating fellow—Strickland."

"Night fell as they say," continued Lord Simon in the airy

way which he customarily used for the discussion of such atrocities, "and it was a nice windy night so that goings-on at windows would not be heard. You all gathered in the lounge for cocktails. And now an odd thing happened. There was talk of murder, and of the discovery of murders. Awkward that, and for a time it quite took the wind out of our friend's sails, or put the wind up him, whichever you please. He didn't like the sound of it. Nasty idea, that, of inevitable discovery. He flattered himself on having worked out a neat little plan, but suppose he wasn't quite as clever as he thought? Your conversation, in fact, never saved Mrs. Thurston's life. Perhaps Strickland even thought someone had rumbled him, and was delicately pointing out that it really wouldn't do.

"At all events, he so far hesi-tated in his ideas as to have another try for some money. If,
after all, she could be persuaded to see him out of his tight corner, he privately resolved—very kindly—to refrain from killing her.
And he went to her room before dinner and pleaded again. But by that time the unhappy lady had parted with her £200 to Stall,
probably during the afternoon,
when she had gone to her room
for her usual siesta. Stall, when I asked him when he had received the money told an obvious lie.
He said that it was just after lunch on Thursday, whereas we know from that cashier who wore that unsightly sort of plaque in his tie, that Mrs. Thurston did not draw it until three o'clock. Stall chose a time when he knew she was in her room—just after lunch on Thursday. But he didn't know that she hadn't then drawn the money. His reason for lying was obvious. He would admit when pressed that he had had the money as a gift but he wasn't going to admit that he'd been in her room on the day of the murder. Well, would you?
I'm hanged if I would in his place. Nasty things, murders.
Best to keep away from them.

"Stall was a blackmailer of the sneer, bully sort, for he had deliberately leaned against a lady's dressing table and taken stuff in her face to show his independence. So that when Strickland tried again for money he was disappointed. All Mary Thurston could do for him was to give him, or lend him, her diamond pendant which he could pawn for enough to see him through, perhaps. The fact that he slipped the thing in his pocket was evidence, I think, that at that moment he had abandoned the idea of his crime. Well, vacillating is dangerous, and he regretted afterwards having accepted the thing.

"Townsend, he knew, saw him
coming out of Mrs. Thurston's room. But when, later, he had taken up his resolution again, that did not seem to matter. Why, after all, shouldn't he have spoken to his hostess for a moment? After a drink or two he could shrug that away as unimportant.
He came down to dinner, and,
while making it clear that he was abnormally tired, he behaved
otherwise without any of the eccentricity that might be expected of a man who was making up his mind to commit a murder. And some time before Mrs. Thurston would retire, he rose, said good night, and went up to his room.

"Fellowes, in the meantime, had done his half-unconscious part.
Under the pretense of running in the motor, he had gone down to the village in the afternoon and warned Miles. And Miles had ingeniously established his alibi by securing no less a person than the village sergeant as his partner in this enthralling game of darts of which we have heard so much,
and then pretending to be so drunk that several witnesses had to help him home to a room
which he shared with another witness. So he was all right.

"But when Fellowes, during dinner, had reached the gymnasium he was a trifle puzzled.
Would one of those ropes be long enough? I own that I was myself perplexed at the finding of two ropes, until I realized that this question had worried Fellowes."

MASTER-HIGHWAYS

SENATOR ROBERT J. BULKLEY'S super-highway plan, which has now reached the propaganda stage, is so stupendous that, on first presentation, it makes an ordinary mind dizzy. There is to be a vast gridiron of thoroughfares covering the country, three main highways running east and west and perhaps twice that many north and south, all far more modern than anything now existing, and calculated to cost perhaps $8,000,000,000.

The cost is not supposed to come out of the federal treasury. The government would merely finance the project. It would be paid for by tolls over a long term of years, at the rate of one-fourth cent a mile by cars using it. In a current statement Senator Bulkley made these claims: "It will afford prompt, continuing and effective aid to recovery. The money spent will have many turn-overs. It will take W. P. A. workers off the government pay roll, reducing appropriations for work relief.

"The super-highway system will permanently increase the automobile business and related lines. Motorists will save time and money for gas consumption. Wear and tear of cars and tires will be reduced and the number of accidents will be lessened. The tolls imposed will not be a tax on the motorist, since he will get full value for all he pays.

"Property values along highways will be enhanced. Concessions will create new business employment. Financing of this system will be on a self-liquidating basis, to be paid out of toll charges and sales of concessions and excess property. Thus it will be a charge on the general taxpayer."

If the nation could really lift itself to prosperity by such bootstraps, it would certainly be worth considering. But it takes time to get used to the idea and its vast, varied implications. All that can properly be asked now is a willingness to study the project.

SECRECY

THERE is an old rhyme about a famous Egyptian Pharaoh which runs as follows:

"Some say the dreadful secret hid
Beneath the Cheops pyramid
Is this—that the contractor did
Cheops out of several millions."

Lately there has been a great delving for mysterious naval secrets at Washington. Has the administration a secret pact with Great Britain for mutual defensive use of navies? What are the secret reasons for a big naval construction campaign just now? Are battleships worth their cost, or is it true that reports proving their uselessness in modern warfare have been concealed by the navy? And so on.

The mystery continues. The one thing we can be reasonably sure of is that, if the big navy people get what they want, it will cost Uncle Sam several billions.

Up to a morning of sunshine, a delightful experience after the dark and gloomy days of the last month. Soon away to the post where did exchange the usual morning greeting with Dr. Shane. Heard a youth, who has not been around enough to know much about anything, complaining about our land and declaring that in his opinion most European countries are far ahead of the United States. For his enlightenment, and for the benefit of others of similar opinion, here are just a few facts and figures: The United States contains only 6 per cent of the world's area and has about 7 per cent of the world's population. Yet the United States normally consumes 48 per cent of the world's coffee; 53 per cent of its tin; 56 per cent of its rubber; 22 per cent of its sugar; 72 per cent of its silk; 36 per cent of its coal; 42 per cent of its pigiron; 47 per cent of its copper, and 69 per cent of its crude petroleum.

The United States operates 60 per cent of the world's telephone and telegraph facilities; owns 50 per cent of the motor cars in use, operates 33 per cent of the railroads. We produce 76 per cent of the world's oil, 60 per cent of the wheat and cotton, 50 per cent of the copper and pigiron and 40 per cent of the lead and coal output of the globe.

The purchasing power of the population of the United States is greater than that of 500,000,000 Europeans and is much larger than that of 1,000,000,000 Asiatics. Oh yes, this is a rotten country in which to live. True, we are having some difficulty now, but with all our resources we will have a most difficult time going broke. Someday we will pull out of these depressing conditions and continue the advance that has been so rapid that the rest of the world is too far behind to catch up regardless of their "utopian" governments.

Our form of government suits me right to the ground. I would rather have precedent showing me the things I can do if I have the brains and energy than have a dictator working 24 hours a day thinking up new things to tell me I can not do.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

IRISH MINISTER HONORED

WASHINGTON — Michael MacWhite, Irish Minister to the United States, is sailing for a new post, and with his departure the American people are losing an old friend.

Foreign diplomats, as a rule, live in houses of gilded glamour. They do not get down and grub with the Congressmen, cooks and bottle-washers who ride on the merry-go-round of Washington. They know as little about the country to which they are accredited as the Los Angeles WPA worker does about diplomacy. Both get their ideas from the movies.

In such an atmosphere Michael MacWhite has stood out as one who knew the United States almost better than the United States knows itself. He knew, for instance, the police chief of every large city in the country, the mayors of many, and had appeared before Irish-American gatherings in every State north of the Mason-Dixon line.

In Chicago he knew almost as much about local politics as Mayor Kelly. In New York the sachems of Tammany called him by his first name. While in Boston—! Well, Boston was a tough spot even for MacWhite—it has too many Irish factions.

In Washington, high officials trusted the Irish Minister more probably than any other diplomat. He was almost one of the family. One day he was in the President's office when Joseph P. Kennedy, then chairman of the Maritime Commission, came in to explain a report on the merchant marine which was marked, "Confidential—for the President." So MacWhite started to withdraw.

"That's all right," said Kennedy, motioning for him to stay, "this is 'Confidential' for the President and MacWhite only'."

HOOVER'S HAIR DOWN

MacWhite also was on good terms with President Hoover, and is one of the few diplomats who ever witnessed those rare moments when Hoover relaxed. One of these occurred during the annual High Jinks at Bohemian Grove near San Francisco some years ago, where MacWhite was a guest.

Arriving at the cabin where he was to stay, MacWhite noted several cots around the room and asked his guide:

"Whose is that?"

"Mr. Hoover's."

"Whose bed is that?"

"That's Mr. Wilbur's, the ex-Secretary of the Interior."

"Well, whose bed is that?"

"That's Will Rogers'." (Will was killed a few weeks later.)

This completed the guest list for that particular cabin. MacWhite hurried off to a cocktail party where the host announced:

"We've been trying to keep this cocktail cool for twenty minutes waiting for you. We've got your favorite kind—a daiquiri."

"Who told you that was my favorite?" asked MacWhite (who has no favorite).

"We got the recipe from Mr. Hoover."

Later Mr. Hoover had a Benedictine. Although he did not go in for anything stronger, the ex-President kept his bunkmates up until late that night regaling them with stories of his war days in Belgium.

If You've Lump in Breast Visit Physician

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D. SEVERAL letters have come in about the treatment of cancer of the breast, of which the following is a typical example: A woman writes to say that she has discovered a small lump in the breast, and wonders whether it could be due to the fact that she had some teeth extracted last week and that there was a gland enlargement from this.

The important thing here is to realize that you must not wait for advice by correspondence. It may be a simple inflammatory condition or it may be cancerous. But what it is should be determined immediately, and that can be done by any physician or surgeon.

Cancer is a local disease in its early stage, and cancer of the breast can usually be removed completely at this time, but it is serious when a few cells from the local growth wander out into the blood stream and begin to set up a growth of their own at distant places.

A great deal of improvement has been made in the treatment of all of these cases by a combination of surgery and X-ray and radium. The use of X-ray and radium, either before or after operation, or both, has prevented the necessity for the radical operations with removal of

When the disease is local and is treated by a combination of surgery and radiation, good results are obtained in a very large series of cases after a five-year period. In fact, the results in cancer of the breast, if intelligent treatment is instituted promptly after the discovery of a lump, are just as good as the results obtained in any chronic disease, and a great deal better than the results obtained in most chronic diseases.

A great many people, like my correspondent, delay because they feel the lump can be explained away in a simple fashion. It is very easy to satisfy an apprehensive mind in this way and to waste the precious days in which it would be possible to promise a cure absolutely. Others feel that they can not bear to have the diagnosis of cancer made. But the whole essence of the successful treatment of cancer depends upon prompt action in the early stage.

It is no longer true that the diagnosis of cancer of the breast necessarily carries with it the implication of a fatal outcome, and the important thing is to utilize the methods of treatment which we have available, and which have proved so successful, at the very earliest possible moment.

A CASE FOR 3 DETECTIVES

By LEO BRUCE
COPYRIGHT BY LEO BRUCE, RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER 40

"NOW STRICKLAND'S plan did not sound to Fellowes as crazy as it may sound to you," Lord Simon pointed out. "In the first place, Mrs. Thurston could be relied on to go to bed at 11. In the second place, she was obviously a woman who could be easily scared. And in the third place, by escaping out of the window, Strickland would give a pretty fair imitation of a bloke from outside. He would have to make sure of her silence, of course, till he was well away, and he would have to make certain that she did not follow him across to her window, and see him pop into his own. But neither of those would be very difficult."

"Fellowes, in any case, was not hard to convince, because his own part in the affair wasn't very difficult or incriminating. All he had to do was to have the rope in when Strickland was safely in his window, and afterwards collect his share of the loot. That was not a hell of a job for a man who had already been to jail for housebreaking."

"So the whole thing was arranged thus. During dinner Fellowes was to get the rope from the gymnasium, hang it out of the window of his own bedroom, which, as you know, is over Strickland's room, go down into Mrs. Thurston's room, and by means of a hooked stick or something haul the end of the rope over to her window. He could fix it there by the simple expedient of pulling the end into the room, and hauling the window down on top of it. Even if anyone went into the room after him, and before Mrs. Thurston came to bed, those long curtains would hide it."

"When the rope was fixed, Fellowes was to take out the electric light bulb, so that when Strickland came the room would be in half-darkness. And after that he had nothing to do until 11, when he was to go up to his bedroom and haul in the rope."

"Meanwhile Strickland, so far as Fellowes knew, was to go to bed early, get into Mrs. Thurston's room in his rough disguise, wait for her to come to bed, clap a hand over her mouth quickly to prevent her screaming, gag her, force her to open the safe, pocket the jewelry, the money, Thurston to something out of sight of the window, climb out onto the rope, let the rope swing him to his own window as it would kindly do in obeying the law of gravity, nip in, conceal the footmole, and be ready to come out of his room and join the hue and cry."

"Fellowes thought it a splendid idea. He saw only one snag in it. That was his friend Miles. He knew it was Miles day off, and that he, who would certainly be outside and not inside the house, would, as an experienced burglar, be at once suspected. But this he could easily avoid by seeing Miles that afternoon, and telling him to see that he had a cast iron alibi in the evening. So Fellowes was quite happy."

"And Strickland's own real, and rather more private plan, was now perfect, too. No paltry disguises for him. A disguise might frighten her into giving a premature scream. He could be waiting in Mrs. Thurston's room just after lunch on Thursday. But he didn't know that she hadn't then drawn the money. His reason for lying was obvious. way which he customarily used for the discussion of such atrocities, "and it was a nice windy night so that goings-on at windows would not be heard. You all gathered in the lounge for cocktails. And now an odd thing happened. There was talk of murder, and of the discovery of murderers. Awkward that, and for a time it took quite the wind out of our friend's sails, or put the wind up him, whichever you please. He didn't like the sound of it. Nasty idea, that, of inevitable discovery. He flattered himself on having worked out a neat little plan, but suppose he wasn't quite as clever as he thought? Your conversation, in fact, nearly saved Mrs. Thurston's room. Perhaps Strickland even thought someone had rumbled him, and was delicately pointing out that it really wouldn't do."

"At all events, he so far hesitated in his ideas as to have another try for some money. If, after all, she could be persuaded to see him out of his tight corner, he privately resolved—very kindly—to refrain from killing her. And he went to her room before dinner and pleaded again. But by that time the unhappy lady had parted with her £200 to Stall, probably during the afternoon, when she had gone to her room for her usual siesta. Stall, when I asked him when he had received the money, told an obvious lie. He said that it was just after lunch on Thursday, whereas we know from that cashier who wore that unsightly sort of plaque in his tie, that Mrs. Thurston did not draw it until three o'clock. Stall chose a time when he knew she was in her room just after lunch on Thursday. But he didn't know that she hadn't then drawn the money. His reason for lying was obvious. He would admit when pressed that he had had the money as a gift but he wasn't going to admit that he'd been in her room on the day of the murder. Well, would you? I'm hanged if I would in his place. Nasty things, murders. Best to keep away from them."

"Stall was a blackmailer of the sneering, bully sort, for he had deliberately leaned against a lady's dressing table and taken snuff in her face to show his independence. So that when Strickland tried again for money he was disappointed. All Mary Thurston could do for him was to give him, or lend him, her diamond pendant which he could pawn for enough to see him through, perhaps. The fact that he slipped the thing in his pocket was evidence, I think, that at that moment he had abandoned the idea of his crime. Well, vacillation is dangerous, and he regretted afterwards having accepted the thing."

"Townsend, he knew, saw him coming out of Mrs. Thurston's room. But when later, he had taken up his resolution again, that did not seem to matter. Why, after all, shouldn't he have spoken to his hostess for a moment? After a drink or two he could shrug that away as unimportant. He came down to dinner, and, while making it clear that he was abnormally tired, he behaved otherwise without any of the eccentricity that might be expected of a man who was making up his mind to commit a murder. WILLIAMSPORT

Even though the Williamsport boys lost their first basketball game of the tournament our community showed its fine school spirit by a large number attending each

I often wonder why actors are misjudged so much by people who don't know 'em. A rich, middle-west farmer moved out here not long ago with his beautiful daughter. One day, a young fella came to him and asked him for his daughter's hand.

Well, sir when the father found out that the young fella was an actor, he flew into a rage and says, "Now listen here, you loafer, I suppose you think you can marry my daughter and then I'll set you up in a home and make you rich?"

The young fella says "No, sir, you misjudge me—I'm willin' to take her jest for my room and board!"

As a last minute St. Valentine's gift to wife, girl friend or the young daughter, one perfume manufacturer has put out a tiny crown-shaped bottle of perfume in a heart-shaped bag to slip into the pocketbook. It's a honey. And it's the perfect answer to that vexed question of how to carry a vial of your favorite perfume in your purse.

Style Whimsies

"Taffeta is on the way back in blouses"—is the word from Paris.

Lucien Lelong, noted dress designer, has now added millinery to his line.

Bright printed blouses are used with matching pocketbooks. Very new and smart.

Ribbed and corded materials are going to be much worn in the Spring and Summer.

Suede boleros will be one of the smartest of the Spring fashions. They are favored in pastel colors.

Fashion is reversing things a bit, but it's all to the good. Taffetas are being worn for daytime and cottons for evening by the younger set.

In the new Spring coat models there are many kimono cuts to sleeves—that is, cut without armholes so that sleeves follow the natural shoulder line. Necklines still are close to the throat.

The contrast of a lively hat with a simple dark frock will be a frequent sight this spring. Such as—a Roman striped turban with a black sheer wool frock.

Soft suits in bright colors to wear under fur coats are popular at the present time. Geranium, sulphur or navy is preferred for tweed suits.

The striped cotton rep sponsored by Heim, Paris dressmaker, is a big favorite in beach costumes this winter. Watch for it the coming summer.

This year many of the suit jackets have short flared peplums.

Mothers! Treat
Children's Colds
This Proved Way

More mothers use VapoRub than any other medication of its kind—they have proved it by use in their own homes. It was further proved in the world's largest cold-clinic. No "dosing"—just massage VapoRub on throat, chest, and back at bedtime. Almost at once, its poultice-and-vapor action starts to loosen phlegm, relieve irritation and coughing, help break local congestion. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

PURDUE CLIMBS INTO LEAD AS WILDCATS LOSE

Ohio State Wins Overtime

Game From Northwestern;
Young Hits 29 Points

CHICAGO, March 1—(UP)— Purdue's Big Ten basketball champions—that's right—were heavy favorites today to make it an undisputed championship in their battle of the year at Northwestern
Saturday night.

Jewell Young, slender, tow-headed southpaw, is the big reason. Tie-ing the conference scoring record
for a single game, Young rolled up 29 points for the second time in his blazing career and broke his own Big Ten record of 172 points. With one more game to play, Young already has 174.

His amazing performance against Chicago led Purdue to a 64 to 33 victory and clinched at least a share of the title when Ohio State upset Northwestern at Columbus, 41 to 33.

Purdue and Northwestern will battle Saturday before a sellout crowd. There has been nothing but standing room available for weeks.

Wisconsin plays at Minnesota,
and Chicago travels to Ohio State.
Illinois and Indiana meet at Champaign Friday.

Three-Way Tie Possible

Northwestern, which spurred into the lead and held on through two unsuccessful challenges from Purdue, still can gain a share of the title and so can Minnesota. If they both win all their remaining games, Purdue, Northwestern and Minnesota will end the season with nine victories and three defeats.

Bad luck plagued Northwestern again last night and the Wildcats lost not only their overtime battle with Ohio State but their Capt.
Fred Trenkle, who fractured his left arm when he was fouled going in for a short shot.

John Schick, Buckeye center, brought Ohio State from behind with a field goal in the last ten seconds of the regular time and tied the score at 35 to 35. Schick then landed with another and the Buckeyes dumped in four straight free throws while Jean Smith sank one for Northwestern.

It was a night of weird endings.
Ernie Davis, Wisconsin guard, gave the Badgers their fifth victory of the conference season by shooting
a field goal while sitting on the floor after a scramble in the last 22 seconds against Indiana. The final score was 34 to 32.

Held to two field goals, Dehner dropped in one of them in the overtime against Michigan and helped the Illini win their fourth conference game, 36 to 32.

A six point Minnesota rally—
after Iowa had lost its scoring star Ben Stephens on personal fouls—gave the Gophers their eighth straight triumph, 31 to 29.

MINE YIELDS DIAMONDS

CAMINO, Cal. (UP)—The old Cherokee mine, formerly known as California's diamond mine because diamonds were occasionally found in its tailings, again has become "active." Bert Carpenter, who is mining it, recently found two diamonds there weighing about two carats each. They were estimated to have a value of about $100 each.

GOMEZ, RUFFING SIGN CONTRACTS, LEAVE FOR CAMP

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March
1—(UP)—Manager Joe McCarthy was all smiles today because his two 20-game winning pitchers, Vernon (Lefty) Gomez and Charles (Red) Ruffing, were en route to the New York Yankees Spring training camp bearing signed contracts.

Gomez, who won 21 and lost 11
for the world champions last year,
was believed to have signed for $18,500—an increase of $5,000 over his 1937 salary. Ruffing, with 20 victories and only seven defeats
last season, probably signed for $17,500 or $18,000.

This apparently ends McCarthy's pitching worries for the coming campaign only one of the five remaining holdouts is a pitcher—Spurgeon Chandler, a sophomore who won 7 and lost 4 while chalking up the best earned run average in the American league—.285.

Chandler, however, is not considered as serious a holdout problem as Joe DiMaggio, Lou Gehrig, Red Rolfe or Frankie Crosetti.

McKECHNIE PUTS HOPES

ON JOHNNY VANDER MEER

TAMPA, Fla., March 1—(UP)

Bill McKechnie startled the baseball world a year ago when he took two 30 year old pitchers
from the obscurity of the American Association and turned them into 20 game winners in the National league. The hurlers or whom McKechnie worked the "miracles" were Lou Fette and Jim Turner.

McKechnie today concentrates his "magic" on another hurler whom he hopes will help lead the Cincinnati Reds out of the cellar.
Instead of a veteran, the current object of McKechnie's attention is Johnny Vander Meer, a youthful southpaw.

Ohio State Wins Overtime Game From Northwestern; Young Hits 29 Points

CHICAGO, March 1—(UP)—Purdue's Big Ten basketball champions—that's right—were heavy favorites today to make it an undisputed championship in their battle of the year at Northwestern Saturday night.

Held to one of them in the overtime against Michigan and helped the Illini win their fourth conference game, 36 to 32.

MCDONALD OFFERED JOB AS COACH AT URBANA

URBANA, March 1—(UP)—

Jim McDonald, star Ohio State football and basketball player, has been offered the position of coach at Urbana high school, it was announced here today.

Noble Bean, a member of the Urbana school board, said McDonald had been contacted relative to the job.

McDonald, who will be graduated from Ohio State in June, has starred in football and basketball for the last three years. He is captain of the current game team and last Fall served as co-captain of the football eleven.

The contract of Roy Black, Urbana's present coach expires in June. Black has been coach here for four years.

JIMMY WILSON TO SHOW MOVIES TO HIS PLAYERS

BILOXI, Miss., March 1—(UP)—

Jimmy Wilson, manager of the Philadelphia Phillies, set up a motion picture projector in the clubhouse today and prepared to show his players their good and bad points on the diamond.

For more than a year now the National league club pilot has been experimenting with photographs of different plays in baseball. He has filmed them in both correct and incorrect ways, making a comprehensive movie that he will show his players at night.

CHEST X-RAYS NEXT STEP IN COUNTY HEALTHER'S TUBERCULOSIS TEST

SCHOOL PUPILS, OTHERS RECEIVE EXAMINATIONS

Those Who Show Positive Reactions To Receive Additional Study

NO CHARGE TO YOUTHS

Three Specialists May Be Brought From Clinic

Pickaway county high school pupils who showed positive reactions to the tuberculin "skin tests" given during the last week by the state and county health departments, will be given chest X-rays as the next step in the program.

Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, announced Tuesday that these X-rays will be given at no cost to the pupil.

During the last week about 600 pupils of the county schools, teachers, other school employees and youngsters in the Children's home took the tests.

A positive tuberculin test does not indicate active tuberculosis. It demonstrates only that the body has at some time been invaded by tubercle bacilli, Dr. Blackburn explained.

Clinical histories of each of the pupils will be prepared by Dr. Blackburn and Miss Margaret Hunsicker, health nurse. When these histories and the X-rays are completed, Dr. Blackburn plans to conduct a clinic attended by superintendents of three sanatoria. So far the specialists have not been definitely selected.

Thorough examination and a diagnosis of each case will be made by the specialists to determine if there is an active case of the disease or if reaction merely showed a previous infection.

Statistics from other counties where the tests have been given show active cases range from about two to 10 percent in those who show positive reactions to the tests.

When the clinic is completed the case history and the diagnosis will be given to the family physician for his advice and treatment. All cases will be referred to the family doctor.

Dr. Blackburn explained that one of the main reasons for the case history was to determine, if possible, where the child received infection. Approximately four or five weeks will be required to complete the case histories.

Pupils of the eighth grade and Circleville high school and their teachers, took the first tests in the city's program, Monday. The first test will be read Wednesday and a second given. The second will be read on Friday. Approximately 300 took the tests Monday.

G-MEN, POLICE PERMIT LAWYER TO NEGOTIATE

Son of Prosperous New York Missing Since Last Thursday

the demands of those who may be holding my boy.

"The authorities, local and federal, have promised me that I am to be permitted to negotiate and accomplish the return of my son without any interference on their part. Those who may be holding my boy can safely deal with me.

"I especially ask the newspapers to refrain from having their representatives telephone my home or congregating in the vicinity. Until I have had a reasonable opportunity to work this out, I shall give no further information.

"I beg my friends and the public to leave my home and telephone alone. All people of decent sentiment will understand and respect my wishes."

Reed Vetterli, agent in charge of the metropolitan headquarters of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, refused to discuss the case, but said the bureau would act in deference to Levine's wishes. The New Rochelle police department, Tilden said, "has agreed to lay off this case for the time being to give the father a chance to make contacts with these kidnappers."

Family Awaits Call

Levine remained at home, near a telephone, with his wife, Minnie, and their daughter, Helen, 10, anxiously awaiting word of Peter's whereabouts. When he disappeared, he was wearing corduroy knickerbockers, brown oxfords, a blue sweater and a red windbreaker with a hood such as football players wear between halves.

There was a figure of an Indian on the jacket, and the initials "C. W."

The father's appeal was broadcast by Herbert Levine, aide to Louis S. Posner, a New York attorney and friend of the Levine family for years. Levine said that he had been appointed Levine's "representative." The word "representative" did not necessarily mean "intermediary," he said.

Mrs. Levine was busy at a telephone call informed her of her son's kidnapping.

The caller, directed her to a vacant lot near her home, where it was said, she would find a note hidden under a stone. She followed directions, found the note, calling for $60,000 as the price of her son's release, police said.

Friends described Levine as a "swell fellow and a good lawyer," and Peter as "a very fine boy." The father never handled criminal cases, they said, and thus they doubted that the kidnapping could have been inspired by underworld vengeance. His offices are in New York City.

An eight-state alarm telling of his disappearance and advising authorities to "detain any person or persons" found in his company, was broadcast by New Rochelle police Thursday night, but was cancelled seven hours later, apparently at Levine's request.

LEGISLATORS ASKED TO STAY UNTIL MARCH 28

Ohio. If anyone can show me any person on the official staff of the state government amenable to the law I'll guarantee to send him to the grand jury." He promised a "fight to the finish" against the attack on him.

The upshot was to leave a decision still in doubt. Speaker Frank Uible guaranteed house action on the senate extension move, but there was no clear indication of the final vote. Uible anticipated that an attempt would be made to amend the senate resolution to fix a new definite date for adjournment and grant the committee only a limited time. In addition there was still the need of funds to finance the inquiry. Under the senate resolution offered by Sen. W. H. Boyd, D., Cleveland, the house and senate would recess subject to the call of the chair.

In the meantime the house and senate clocks were stopped and covered to maintain the fiction that the legislature still working on Feb. 28 until it is determined whether to postpone adjournment.

The governor's radio speech actually lasted only 15 minutes, but his entire address consumed 58 minutes. The broadcast part was concerned principally with denunciation of Lee Bradley who had testified before the senate committee as a "scoundrel" and description of Bradley's testimony concerning alleged "deals" with motor and utilities companies as "falsehoods."

The resolutions of Senator Metcalf, senate minority leader, demanding the resignation of the four high officials were referred to the rules committee. In his speech the governor said he had sole authority to "fire" them and that he would not do so.

The governor entered the house chamber flanked by a legislative escort and two uniformed highway patrolmen. After his radio speech he launched into a vitriolic attack on those he accused of fostering an unwarranted attack on him.

He described the Scripps-Howard newspapers as "running" the investigation; of having "dug up" Bradley; and of being the "loudest and most rotten outfit in America." He denied in toto the charges made by Bradley, who claimed to have been his "contact man."

"I do not seek to tell any member of the house what he ought to do," the governor said. "Let your conscience be your guide and stand right with your God."

"I appeal only to the sense of fairness and decency of every member of the house. The procedure in the senate is rotten. Every principle of American government and the constitution has been violated."

"You may, if you wish, go along with that, but God help America if that is to be the fate of her government and her public officials."

"This Russian procedure of the senate committee is the most unfair, un-American and malicious undertaking in the history of Ohio."

He said "this hypocritical and malicious prosecution will turn against them like the fiery dragon of outraged justice."

The governor denied that the activities of G. Lloyd Weil, former Akron mayor, in collecting commissions on gasoline sold to the state, reflected on the administration.

"This oil company hired this politician as a salesman," he said. "They had a right, I would assume, to enter into that kind of a contract. But they got only a small portion of the business."

He also said there was no wrong in the employment of William J. Goggin, connected with Democratic state headquarters, by Harry Steele, Columbus hardware dealer, to obtain state contracts.

He insisted that the investigation was not made in good faith and that an offer was made to him to end the inquiry if he would definitely announce he would not be a candidate for a third term. In reference to Bradley's charges the governor offered to submit the books of the Davey Tree Expert Co., to "any impartial jury" to prove the utilities charges unfounded.

He announced that he would "fire" Harry A. Sparks, a highway engineer and civil service employee, because until his appearance before the investigating body Sparks never told an official, that highway costs were excessive, according to the governor.

"Because he sat there and never said a word about it I'm going to tell the director of highways to fire him," the governor said. It was reported that Sparks would reply to the governor's statement today.

The governor admitted that the contract whereby the Shaw Transport Co., was shown to have received a contract for liquor hauling one day after its incorporation "doesn't look good." He promised the liquor department would investigate the matter. John Nolan, Steubenville, Democratic leader, according to evidence before the committee, is a stockholder in the Shaw Company.

Senator Metcalf on the floor of the senate charged that this arrangement and the subsequent subletting of the contract by the Shaw Company for a rate five and one-half cents below the principal contract was sufficient for removal of Liquor Director Miller.

The governor said he had "complete confidence" in highway department officials. While he admitted there may have been "collusion" among manufacturers and contractors dealing in "hot mix" road materials, he said this was a matter for the attorney general or a county prosecutor.

He conceded that the state was "taken advantage of" by a Cleveland firm on one coal transaction, but maintained that with the one exception "the picture is as clean as anything in government. As for Athens county truck operators who complained the governor said they merely objected to paying a 30 cent commission and wanted to pay a lesser amount on their coal sales to another person. He said the testimony indicated the commissions were paid to a county chairman and said he failed to see how "we had anything to do with it."

In the senate on the resolution to extend the investigation, Senator Boyd declared that action to assure a further inquiry was essential.

"We were called on here to stick our necks out," he said. "Many of us through adoption of this resolution may be hurt politically, but it has come to a point where one is almost ashamed to admit that we live in one of the best states of the union."

His resolution to annul sine die adjournment action passed finally on the 10th roll call when Sen. Harold D. Nichols, D., Clermont, who had previously refused to vote, cast the 19th affirmative vote.

A motion for unanimous consent to print the governor's message in the house journal was objected to by Rep. L. C. Washburn, D., Summit, on the grounds the address was "not a state message, but merely a political document." The motion prevailed nevertheless.

SCHOOL PUPILS, OTHERS RECEIVE EXAMINATIONS

Those Who Show Positive Reactions To Receive Additional Study

NO CHARGE TO YOUTHS

Three Specialists May Be Brought From Clinic

Pickaway county high school pupils who showed positive reactions to the tuberculin "skin tests" given during the last week by the state and county health departments, will be given chest X-rays as the next step in the program.

Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, announced Tuesday that these X-rays will be given at no cost to the pupil.

A positive tuberculin test does not indicate active tuberculosis. It demonstrates only that the body has at some time been invaded by tubercle bacilli, Dr. Blackburn explained.

Clinical histories of each of the pupils will be prepared by Dr. Blackburn and Miss Margaret Hunsicker, health nurse. When these histories and the X-rays are completed, Dr. Blackburn plans to conduct a clinic attended by superintendents of three sanatoria. So far the specialists have not been definitely selected.

Thorough examination and a diagnosis of each case will be made by the specialists to determine if there is an active case of the disease or if reaction merely showed a previous infection.

Statistics from other counties where the tests have been given show active cases range from about two to 10 percent in those who show positive reactions to the tests.

When the clinic is completed the case history and the diagnosis will be given to the family physician for his advice and treatment. All cases will be referred to the family doctor.

Dr. Blackburn explained that one of the main reasons for the case history was to determine, if possible, where the child received infection. Approximately four or five weeks will be required to complete the case histories.

Pupils of the eighth grade and Circleville high school and their teachers, took the first tests in the city's program, Monday. The first test will be read Wednesday and a second given. The second will be read on Friday. Approximately 300 took the tests Monday.

G-MEN, POLICE PERMIT LAWYER TO NEGOTIATE

The demands of those who may be holding my boy.

"The authorities, local and federal, have promised me that I am to be permitted to negotiate and accomplish the return of my son without any interference on their part. Those who may be holding my boy can safely deal with me."

"I especially ask the newspapers to refrain from having their representatives telephone my home or congregating in the vicinity. Until I have had a reasonable opportunity to work this out, I shall give no further information."

"I beg my friends and the public to leave my home and telephone alone. All people of decent sentiment will understand and respect my wishes."

Reed Vetterli, agent in charge of the metropolitan headquarters of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, refused to discuss the case, but said the bureau would act in deference to Levine's wishes. The New Rochelle police department, Tilden said, "has agreed to lay off this case for the time being to give the father a chance to make contacts with these kidnappers."

Family Awaits Call

Levine remained at home, near a telephone, with his wife, Minnie, and their daughter, Helen, 10, anxiously awaiting word of Peter's whereabouts. When he disappeared, he was wearing corduroy knickerbockers, brown oxfords, a blue sweater and a red windbreaker with a hood such as football players wear between halves.

There was a figure of an Indian on the jacket, and the initials "C. W."

The father's appeal was broadcast by Herbert Levine, aide to Louis S. Posner, a New York attorney and friend of the Levine family for years. Levine said that he had been appointed Levine's "representative." The word "representative" did not necessarily mean "intermediary," he said.

Mrs. Levine was busy at home Thursday afternoon when a telephone call informed her of her son's kidnapping.

The caller, directed her to a vacant lot near her home, where it was said, she would find a note hidden under a stone. She followed directions, found the note, calling for $60,000 as the price of her son's release, police said.

Friends described Levine as a "swell fellow and a good lawyer," and Peter as "a very fine boy." The father never handled criminal cases, they said, and thus they doubted that the kidnapping could have been inspired by underworld vengeance. His offices are in New York City.

An eight-state alarm telling of his disappearance and advising authorities to "detain any person or persons" found in his company, was broadcast by New Rochelle police Thursday night, but was cancelled seven hours later, apparently at Levine's request.

Ohio. If anyone can show me any person on the official staff of the state government amenable to the law I'll guarantee to send him to the grand jury." He promised a "fight to the finish" against the attack on him.

The upshot was to leave a decision still in doubt. Speaker Frank Uible guaranteed house action on the senate extension move, but there was no clear indication of the final vote. Uible anticipated that an attempt would be made to amend the senate resolution to fix a new definite date for adjournment and grant the committee only a limited time. In addition there was still the need of funds to finance the inquiry. Under the senate resolution offered by Sen. W. H. Boyd, D., Cleveland, the house and senate would recess subject to the call of the chair.

In the meantime the house and senate clocks were stopped and covered to maintain the fiction that the legislature still working on Feb. 28 until it is determined whether to postpone adjournment.

The governor's radio speech actually lasted only 15 minutes, but his entire address consumed 58 minutes. The broadcast part was concerned principally with denunciation of Lee Bradley who had testified before the senate committee as a "scoundrel" and description of Bradley's testimony concerning alleged "deals" with motor and utilities companies as "falsehoods."

The resolutions of Senator Metcalf, senate minority leader, demanding the resignation of the four high officials were referred to the rules committee. In his speech the governor said he had sole authority to "fire" them and that he would not do so.

The governor entered the house chamber flanked by a legislative escort and two uniformed highway patrolmen. After his radio speech he launched into a vitriolic attack on those he accused of fostering an unwarranted attack on him.

He described the Scripps-Howard newspapers as "running" the investigation; of having "dug up" Bradley; and of being the "loudest and most rotten outfit in America." He denied in toto the charges made by Bradley, who claimed to have been his "contact man."

"I do not seek to tell any member of the house what he ought to do," the governor said. "Let your conscience be your guide and stand right with your God."

"I appeal only to the sense of fairness and decency of every member of the house. The procedure in the senate is rotten. Every principle of American government and the constitution has been violated."

"You may, if you wish, go along with that, but God help America if that is to be the fate of her government and her public officials."

"This Russian procedure of the senate committee is the most unfair, un-American and malicious

undertaking in the history of Ohio."

He said "this hypocritical and malicious prosecution will turn against them like the fiery dragon of outraged justice."

The governor denied that the activities of G. Lloyd Weil, former Akron mayor, in collecting commissions on gasoline sold to the state, reflected on the administration.

"This oil company hired this politician as a salesman," he said. "They had a right, I would assume, to enter into that kind of a contract. But they got only a small portion of the business."

He also said there was no wrong in the employment of William J. Goggin, connected with Democratic state headquarters, by Harry Steele, Columbus hardware dealer, to obtain state contracts.

He insisted that the investigation was not made in good faith and that an offer was made to him to end the inquiry if he would definitely announce he would not be a candidate for a third term. In reference to Bradley's charges the governor offered to submit the books of the Davey Tree Expert Co., to "any impartial jury" to prove the utilities' charges unfounded.

He announced that he would "fire" Harry A. Sparks, a highway engineer and civil service employee, because until his appearance before the investigating body Sparks never told an official, that highway costs were excessive, according to the governor.

"Because he sat there and never said a word about it I'm going to tell the director of highways to fire him," the governor said. It was reported that Sparks would reply to the governor's statement today.

The governor admitted that the contract whereby the Shaw Transport Co., was shown to have received a contract for liquor hauling one day after its incorporation "doesn't look good." He promised the liquor department would investigate the matter. John Nolan, Steubenville, Democratic leader, according to evidence before the committee, is a stockholder in the Shaw Company.

Senator Metcalf on the floor of the senate charged that this arrangement and the subsequent subletting of the contract by the Shaw Company for a rate five and one-half cents below the principal contract was sufficient for removal of Liquor Director Miller.

The governor said he had "complete confidence" in highway department officials. While he admitted there may have been "collusion" among manufacturers and contractors dealing in "hot mix" road materials, he said this was a matter for the attorney general or a county prosecutor.

He conceded that the state was "taken advantage of" by a Cleveland firm on one coal transaction, but maintained that with the one exception "the picture is as clean as anything in government. As for Athens county truck operators who complained the governor said they merely objected to paying a 30 cent commission and wanted to pay a lesser amount on their coal sales to another person. He said the testimony indicated the commissions were paid to a county chairman and said he failed to see how "we had anything to do with it."

In the senate on the resolution to extend the investigation, Senator Boyd declared that action to assure a further inquiry was essential.

"We were called on here to stick our necks out," he said. "Many of us through adoption of this resolution may be hurt politically, but it has come to a point where one is almost ashamed to admit that we live in one of the best states of the union."

His resolution to annul sine die adjournment action passed finally on the 10th roll call when Sen. Harold D. Nichols, D., Clermont, who had previously refused to vote, cast the 19th affirmative vote.

A motion for unanimous consent to print the governor's message in the house journal was objected to by Rep. L. C. Washburn, D., Summit, on the grounds the address was "not a state message, but merely a political document." The motion prevailed nevertheless.
